

National Study of Long-Term Care Providers

National Health Care Surveys

- Your adult day services center is important to us.
- The most reliable information comes from you.
- Be counted in this ground-breaking study.

National Study of Long-Term Care Providers (NSLTCP)

Adult Day Services · Assisted Living/Residential Care · Home Health Care · Hospice · Nursing Homes

Study goals:

1. Estimate the supply of major types of LTC providers
2. Estimate key policy-relevant characteristics and practices of these LTC providers
3. Estimate the use of these LTC providers
4. Estimate key policy-relevant characteristics of LTC users
5. Produce national and state estimates where possible

National Study of Long-Term Care Providers

Your adult day services center is important to us.

- Participating in NSLTCP is a tremendous opportunity to ensure that the ADS industry is accurately represented.
- NSLTCP data will provide benchmarks, which will allow you to compare your center with all participating centers in the nation, and where possible, in your state.

NADSA, LeadingAge and NASUAD encourage you to participate!

ADSC letter of support

The National Study of Long-Term Care Providers (NSLTCP), designed by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS), is conducting its second survey of U.S. adult day services centers. We thank everyone who completed the 2012 survey and contributed to its impressive, final response rate of 67.2%. We need your help to further increase the number of adult day providers that complete the 2014 survey.

All centers are invited to participate in the 2014 NSLTCP, which begins in June and ends in December. We strongly encourage you to participate in the survey, whose benefits include (1) advancing adult day services in our long-term services and supports system; (2) allowing state estimates, where possible, to compare centers across states and nationally; and (3) contributing to NCHS' 2015 long-term care overview report.

Data from the 2012 survey allowed CDC to compare our services, participants, and funding to other providers like home health agencies and residential care communities. The overwhelming positive feedback on that report (http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/data/nsltcp/long_term_care_services_2013.pdf) demonstrates the usefulness of this information to adult day services providers, policymakers, and health care planners in helping them better understand, plan for, and serve the future long-term care needs of older persons and younger adults with disabilities.

Center directors can submit their survey questionnaires by mail, using the pre-addressed, postage-paid envelope, or online over a safe and secure network. All individual data from the survey will be kept confidential. The names of the adult day services centers, staff, participants, and respondents will not be identifiable.

NADSA, LeadingAge, and NASUAD appreciate your participation in this important national initiative. Please encourage all your fellow adult day providers in your state and region to complete the survey and improve the research on adult day services. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact us at our national office.

Many thanks,
