LETTER FROM THE CONFERENCE CO-CHAIRS

December 2015

Dear Conference Participants:

Welcome to the 2015 National HIV Prevention Conference, and thank you for participating. We hope the information and knowledge shared over these four days will propel us closer to ending HIV in the United States.

Earlier this year, the White House issued the National HIV/AIDS Strategy: Updated through 2020, which calls us to a renewed, coordinated commitment to saving lives through HIV prevention, care, and research. Our conference theme, “Accelerating Progress: Prevent Infections. Strengthen Care. Reduce Disparities.” complements the strategy’s vision where in the future, we will rarely see new HIV infections and every person who needs high-quality HIV health care will have access to it.

We are indeed at a time of accelerating progress in HIV prevention and care. Biomedical advances have given us pre-exposure prophylaxis (PrEP), a powerful tool that can dramatically reduce a person’s risk of becoming infected. In addition, research has validated the benefits of early HIV treatment-- as an optimal life-saving treatment so that HIV-positive persons can dramatically lower the risk of transmitting HIV to others.

Routine HIV screening is now recommended for all people aged 15 to 65. New laboratory testing recommendations are helping us to diagnose HIV infections earlier, even during the acute phase of infection, when transmission is most likely to occur. For those who are living with HIV, guidance on the use of antiretroviral therapy (ART) has been updated to reflect the latest research on the most effective regimens and confirms the substantial personal and community benefits of early treatment.

Federal agencies are working together to ensure that these advances in screening and treatment lead to fewer undiagnosed infections and more people with HIV being linked to care, retained in care, prescribed ART, and virally suppressed.

Finally, the Affordable Care Act gives people living with HIV more affordable and comprehensive insurance options and guarantees that no one will be denied coverage because of HIV. HIV testing is now covered with no co-pay or deductible.

Despite our hard work and progress, many challenges remain. New diagnoses are increasing among gay and bisexual men, and many people with HIV do not receive ongoing treatment or achieve viral suppression. The National HIV/AIDS Strategy sets four goals to address these challenges:

- Reduce new HIV infections
- Increase access to care and improve health outcomes for people living with HIV
- Reduce HIV-related health disparities and health inequities
- Achieve a more coordinated national response to HIV in the United States

This conference provides an important opportunity to share our work and ideas, to learn from each other, and to discuss strategies that will help us meet these national goals.

We thank our partners, staff, and volunteers who have made this conference possible. We especially thank you for your work in delivering prevention programs, ensuring that people receive the HIV care and prevention services they need, or conducting vital research that may lead to the next breakthrough. May the ideas and knowledge exchanged here move us closer to the day when new HIV infections are rare in the United States.

Welcome to Atlanta and to the conference. We hope you enjoy the conference and return home with a renewed zeal for strengthening our nation’s response to HIV.

Session SS10 - Charting a Path to the Future: Health System Transformation and Its Implications for the Structure, Delivery, and Financing of HIV Prevention Services

Location: Hanover D (Hyatt Regency Atlanta)

Description: The health system is undergoing a historic transformation, and these changes offer unparalleled opportunities for public health stakeholders and service providers to improve population health outcomes by expanding access to and support for core preventive services and activities, including those that are integral to preventing HIV transmission. Health departments, community based organizations, and other members of the public health enterprise in general, and the HIV prevention community in particular, must, therefore, not only understand the system that is emerging; they must also be prepared to shape its development—and their places within it. After attending this panel, attendees will better understand how broad, national payment reforms may affect public health in general—and HIV prevention in particular; they will also be able to articulate how specific organizations like those to which they belong (i.e., CBOs and health departments) can, or should prepare to, leverage these changes to advance HIV prevention goals in their communities.

Session SS09 - Sustainable Delivery of HIV Preventive Services in Today's Healthcare Environment: What Does It Take to Make Billing Part of the Answer?

Location: A708 (Atlanta Marriott Marquis)

Description: Changes in the financial and structural landscape of public health have driven health departments to critically reevaluate the composition of their service portfolios in general, and the position of clinical preventive services within those portfolios in particular. Billing third party payers (including Medicare, Medicaid, and private insurers) is one means by which health departments may generate the revenue necessary to support delivery and even expand availability of core clinical preventive services, such as HIV or STD testing. The challenge lies in translating this hypothetical promise into operational reality. By exploring billing-related issues, opportunities, experiences, and perspectives from different vantage points and "levels" (federal, state, local), this panel will increase attendees' understanding of the potential value—and limits—of billing as a means of preserving and extending finite public health resources.
