Video Summary

Breast cancer doesn't just affect the person diagnosed, it can affect the entire family. For sisters Emily and Caroline, that means managing their risks of breast cancer in individual ways, but coming together to support each other on their paths.

Audio Script

[Emily]: My name is Emily...

[Caroline]: I'm Caroline

[Emily]: She's my older sister, so we're really close.

[Caroline]: My mom was diagnosed with cancer, January 2012. She had triple negative breast cancer...my mom is a BRCA mutation carrier.

[Caroline]: I took the test and... I was positive with the BRCA-2 mutation.

[Emily]: I also found out that I had tested positive.

[Emily]: We've kind of been on...two separate paths with how we reacted to the diagnosis.

[Caroline]: My mom's always been very, like, "You gotta do what's right for you... what you think is best, is best."
