JOIN GLOBAL LEADERS in #COMBATINGAMR

September 21

When microorganisms develop antimicrobial resistance (AMR), standard treatments become ineffective and infections persist, threatening sustainable development, and undermining modern medicine and food security.

Individuals, diverse communities, and nations around the world are #CombatingAMR to safeguard antibiotics for future generations.

On September 21, the UN is convening a High Level Meeting on Antimicrobial Resistance during the UN General Assembly. Whether you plan an event, share a picture, write a blog post, or simply tweet, let the world know why partnerships are critical to win this global fight!

The United States government is working with other nations, individuals, and organizations #CombatingAMR as part of the National Strategy for Combating Antibiotic Resistant Bacteria and will participate in the High Level Meeting at the U.N General Assembly.
