Healthy School Fundraisers

How Can You Help?

Schools are a key setting where children and adolescents learn about and have opportunities to practice healthy eating.¹,² Foods and beverages sold for fundraisers during the school day must meet Smart Snacks in School nutrition standards.³ These standards promote options that have whole grains, fruits, vegetables, or low-fat dairy, as their main ingredients, and set limits for calories, sugar, fat, and sodium.³ However, some states allow exemptions for items that do not meet Smart Snacks in School standards to be sold for fundraisers.⁴ Schools can help provide consistent messages about healthy eating by using fundraising activities that support health by aligning with Smart Snacks in School standards, involving physical activity (e.g., dance-a-thon), or selling non-food items (e.g., student artwork).¹

What’s Happening at School?

Knowing the answers to the following questions can help you support healthy fundraisers in your child’s school. If you don’t know the answers to these questions, check out the school handbook or school website, attend a school wellness meeting or Parent-Teacher Association (PTA) meeting, or simply ask your child’s teacher.

1. Does the state, school district, or school have policies about items sold for fundraising activities?

2. What types of fundraisers does the school have? Do they promote certain brands of food or specific restaurants?

3. If foods and beverages are currently sold as part of fundraisers, is nutritional information available for the products? Do these items meet the Smart Snacks in School nutrition standards?⁵

4. Who is in charge of fundraisers? How can ideas for healthy fundraisers be shared with them?
Ideas for Parents

You can be involved in your child’s school by attending meetings, workshops, or training events offered by the school; communicating with school staff and other parents; volunteering for school events or in your child’s classroom; reinforcing healthy messages and practices your child learns at school; helping make decisions about health in the school; and being part of community activities supported by the school. Here are some specific ideas for how you can support your child’s school in providing healthy fundraisers.

➜ Learn more about the types of fundraisers available at school. Do they meet Smart Snacks in School nutrition standards?

➜ E-mail or discuss with other parents the importance of having healthy school fundraisers.

➜ Join the school or district committee (e.g., wellness committee) that sets the policies for health and wellness, and work to include language about healthy fundraisers in these policies.1,6

➜ Talk with the parent-teacher groups about healthy alternatives for fundraising events.

➜ Work with community groups or local businesses to sponsor a physical activity fundraising event, such as a skate-a-thon or dance-a-thon.

➜ When you see a healthier fundraiser in place, reach out to the organizers, and let them know you appreciate their efforts.

Check out additional resources for parents related to the school nutrition environment and services, physical education and physical activity, and managing chronic health conditions at http://www.cdc.gov/healthyschools/P4HS.htm.

REFERENCES

