

It seems that this year's flu vaccine is not nearly as effective as we would like among people over the age of 65 for one particular strain of flu. That's why early treatment is so important.