

Barbara A. Bowman, PhD

Director of CDC's Division for Heart Disease and Stroke Prevention,
National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion

Barbara A. Bowman, PhD, is Director of CDC's Division for Heart Disease and Stroke Prevention. Since joining CDC in 1992, Dr. Bowman has held several senior leadership positions including Associate Director for Science, Acting Director of the Division of Cancer Prevention and Control, Associate Director for Policy Studies in the Division of Diabetes Translation, Chief of the Chronic Disease Nutrition Branch in the Division of Nutrition and Physical Activity, and Acting Chief of the Nutritional Biochemistry Branch, National Center for Environmental Health. She served as the official CDC liaison to NIH from 2003 to 2009. Dr. Bowman holds a Ph.D. in Human Nutrition and Nutritional Biology from the University of Chicago and conducted postdoctoral research in nutritional biochemistry at Emory University. She is a diplomat of the American Board of Nutrition. She has published extensively in the areas of nutritional epidemiology, assessment, and physiology, and on the primary prevention of diabetes. She serves as Associate Editor for the Annual Review of Nutrition and the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, and on the editorial board for Preventing Chronic Disease. She was co-editor of the 8th and 9th editions of the monograph, Present Knowledge in Nutrition.

