

Every day you see them reach milestones.
There are free resources to help you spot a few more.

You spend your day working with, playing with, and watching children, and you are already familiar with many milestones — such as pointing at objects, smiling, and playing with others — that mark a child's development. All children are unique, but sooner or later, you will see a child who is not developing as they should. Free information on developmental milestones from 2 months to five years is available for child care providers and preschool teachers.

For FREE materials, visit www.cdc.gov/ActEarly or call 1-800-CDC-INFO.

Learn the Signs. Act Early.