

State Profile: Maryland

Parent-Reported Diagnosis of ADHD by a Health Care Provider and Medication Treatment Among Children 4-17 Years: National Survey of Children's Health* – 2003 to 2011

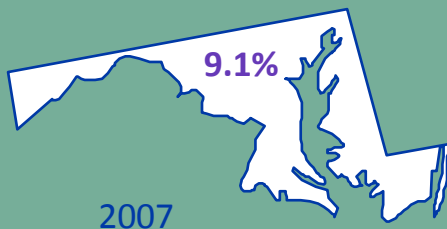

Survey Question

Has a doctor or health care provider ever told you that your child had attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder or attention deficit disorder (ADHD or ADD)?

Does your child currently have ADHD or ADD?

In 2007, 7.2% of US children and 9.1% of children in Maryland had current ADHD, by parent report.

In 2011, 8.8% of US children and 8.9% of children in Maryland had current ADHD, by parent report.

Among all US states, Maryland ranked 12th highest.

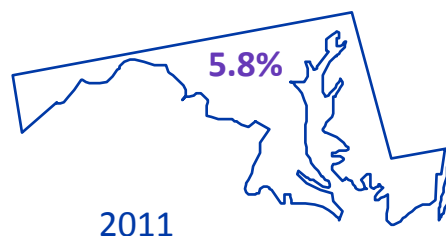

Among all US states, Maryland ranked 30th highest.

Is your child currently taking medication for ADHD or ADD?

In 2007, 4.8% of US children and 6.1% of children in Maryland were taking medication for ADHD.

In 2011, 6.1% of US children and 5.8% of children in Maryland were taking medication for ADHD.

Among all US states, Maryland ranked 14th highest.

Among all US states, Maryland ranked 33rd highest.

* The National Survey of Children's Health is conducted by CDC and sponsored by the Maternal and Child Health Bureau, HRSA: www.cdc.gov/nchs/slaits/nsch.htm

