The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services continues its long-standing dedication to improving the health and wellness of all Americans through the National Implementation and Dissemination for Chronic Disease Prevention program. Administered and supported through the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the National Implementation and Dissemination for Chronic Disease Prevention program enables national organizations to build capacity in communities and put into action sustainable change strategies for their local chapters and affiliates. National organizations build and strengthen community infrastructure to implement population-based strategies to improve community health.
