

Who Should Get Tested for STDs?

Getting tested for sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) is important to protect your health. If you are sexually active, talk to your healthcare provider about STD testing and which tests may be right for you.

WOMEN

Sexually active women under 25, or women over 25 with risk factors should be tested for CHLAMYDIA and GONORRHEA every year.

PREGNANT WOMEN

Starting early in pregnancy, all pregnant women should be tested for SYPHILIS, HIV, and HEPATITIS B, and those at risk should be tested for CHLAMYDIA and GONORRHEA. Repeat testing is sometimes needed.

GAY AND BISEXUAL MEN

Sexually active gay and bisexual men should be tested for CHLAMYDIA, GONORRHEA, HIV, and SYPHILIS at least once a year.

More frequent STD testing is sometimes recommended (e.g., every 3-6 months) for men at high risk.

All adults ages 13 to 64 should be tested at least once for HIV.
