While my husband did not get cancer he did suffer from depression, which is a chemical imbalance. There was no family history of depression in his family and he worked around the chemicals for years. Do you know if this condition is also being considered?