I fully endorse the continuation of the childhood agricultural injury prevention initiative activities. The initiative has been proved invaluable in serving the needs of both the rural and agricultural communities by addressing unique concerns otherwise disregarded. For example, the journalist workshop offered by NCCRAHS has provided in-depth information to a cadre of media professionals providing them with insights into the complexities associated with children's participation in agriculture. I have made numerous references and provided referrals to many regarding the many resources made available from the initiative.
