PROGRAM DESCRIPTION: Low HPV vaccination rates are leaving another generation of boys and girls vulnerable to devastating HPV cancers. Vaccination could prevent most of these cancers. CDC is looking to you to make an effective recommendation for HPV vaccination when kids are 11 and 12 years old. Provided in this presentation is up-to-date information on HPV infection and disease, the HPV vaccine recommendation, and ways to successfully communicate with patients and their parents about HPV vaccination. Discover simple changes you can make today to prevent cancer in your patients tomorrow.

OBJECTIVES: At the conclusion of the session, the participant will be able to:

Describe why HPV vaccination is important for cancer prevention.

Identify the appropriate HPV vaccination schedule based on patient age.

Describe effective HPV vaccine recommendations for patients age 11 or 12, and age 13 and older.

Recognize self-efficacy in delivering effective HPV vaccination recommendations

Identify reassuring, confident, and concise responses to parental questions about HPV vaccination.

Implement disease detection and prevention health care services (e.g., smoking cessation, weight reduction, diabetes screening, blood pressure screening, immunization services) to prevent health problems and maintain health.
