

Memorandum

Date September 16, 1985

From Assistant to Director for Field Activities

Subject Watsonian Society

To Acting Director, CDC

An organization of Public Health Advisors employed (or formerly employed) by CDC has recently been formed. The name selected for this association is the Watsonian Society. The purpose is to unite past and present Public Health Advisors of CDC to meet the following objectives:

1. Contribute to the overall public health management excellence of CDC.
2. Recognize, preserve, and advance among CDC Public Health Advisors, the professional, personal, and social attributes which have distinguished the career of William C. Watson, Jr.
3. Encourage and maintain professional esprit de corps and general camaraderie among CDC Public Health Advisors.

A copy of the proposed constitution and By-laws is attached for your information.

This organization and its constitution meets the requirements of Chapter 25-10 of the General Administration manual on employee welfare and recreation organizations. As such we request permission to identify with the Centers for Disease Control, and for recognition as an employee organization. Your selection of a liaison representative to the Watsonian Society will be appreciated.
