

What is a Work@Health® Wellness Champion?

The Work@Health® program provides expert training, technical assistance, and support to employers nationwide dedicated to building effective worksite health programs.

Work@Health® Wellness Champions are organizations and/or employers that have demonstrated a commitment to promoting the Work@Health® program within their respective networks.

Recognized Work@Health® Wellness Champions will use their networks and contacts to promote the Work@Health® program to potential employers and professionals with an interest in becoming Work@Health® certified trainers.

These organizations include:

- Health departments
- Business coalitions
- Professional associations
- Public health-based non-profits
- Trade associations

Work@Health® Wellness Champion Benefits

- Recognized by the CDC as a Work@Health® program partner.
- Build the worksite wellness expertise and capacity of your organization and members.
- Access to the most up-to-date worksite wellness resource materials, which can be shared with the Wellness Champion's networks.
- Priority placement for future Work@Health® training opportunities and classes.

What do Work@Health® Wellness Champions Do?

- Promote the Work@Health® program to its network members and potential Work@Health® participants.
- Appoint a Work@Health® point of contact responsible for coordinating Work@Health® promotion.
- Assist the Work@Health® program team with follow up activities.
- Consider becoming a participant in the Work@Health® Train-the-Trainer Program to learn how to be a resource for its membership.

Applications and more details can be found at: www.cdc.gov/workathealth/ contact Work@Health® Customer Service at 1-800-305-WELL (9355) and workathealthcustsvc@ashlininc.com